Absolute u2665u2665u2665u2665u2665u2665u2665. I really enjoy this game, but it is a very niche product. If you enjoy the character variation of MOBAs (lots of characters with different passive/active abilities, ultimates, gaining items, etc) and you also like survival games with permadeath (first death = you're out of the match), then you'll enjoy this and it's at least worth the price of entry to check it out. I am looking forward to future development of the game and seeing the population grow more. But definitely check this one out if you like MOBAs and survival / Battle Royale type games.. Interesting idea.. I've tried to get into a game many times only to receive a "connection error" message having to restart the game and the queing process. The one time I did however manage to make it into a game the server was completely populated by Ai aside from myself. and needless to say the lack of a in-game tutorial really came into play as I died to the very first NPC camp of mobs I had found. Cool concept, horrible game.. Looks fine, but needs more players and activities.. Good game, but the lag is insane.

They are: Dendromonster Fire Maestro Primologist Taika Sorceress Please notice that the next change of free rotation Heroes will happen in two weeks.. End of development : Lords and Ladies! Prime Arena has been an experiment in the new genre for us; based on the universe from another game weve made - Prime World. Most of you are familiar with it, and we are sure you spent a lot of hours on the Borderlands of Praya. Prime Arena was aimed to deliver new gaming experience in the beloved setting. However, the development vector we chose did not allow the game to fulfill its destination. It was not as interesting to you as we thought it would be, so we froze the development for a while. We made a thorough analysis of the project and the gaming industry and decided to shunt the development of Prime Arena once and for all in order to concentrate our resources on other projects. To make this farewell as smooth as it can be, we are warning you about the servers shutdown beforehand. You will be able to enjoy Prime Arena for 4 more months. While the game is still available, weve thought that it is a nice idea to forget about the rotations concept and are allowing you to play all the Heroes. Have fun with all the characters in Prime Arena! From August 1 2019 game servers will be shut down.
